LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 6

THE GREAT COMMANDMENTS.

LESSON TEXT-Mark 12:28-44.
GOLDEN TEXT-"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." Luke 10:27.

This lesson considers a third question asked of our Lord; two others in this connection we studied last field. week. It was not so much a question of placing one commandment in competition with another, but rather which commandment most clearly epitomizes or reveals the final principle in law. It was the business of this scribe to know the law and to interpret the commandments. Jesus in his reply quotes from Deut. 5:4, and from Lev. 19:18, which are both in a sense an exposition of the Decalogue.

Love the Basis. I. The answer of Jesus, vv. 28-34. The scribe's question seemed to be quite specific and so the Lord strikes at once at the heart and by his quotation reveals to us the fact that the principle which is the inspiration of the law is that of love. In passing we have here another illustration of the master's ready use and knowledge of the Scripture. Jesus makes a four-fold summary. Man must love God with (a) the heart, e. g., in sincerity and uprightness; (b) with the soul, with the warmth of the emotions, and the feelings; (c) "with all thy mind," the intellect, not as a blind devotee; (d) with "strength," viz., with intensity of service, with energy. "To love God with all the heart and soul and mind and strength is to have supreme desire for and delight in God's glory, making everything else second to that." This statement is but half, for the complement of our love of God is to love man. Man created in God's image was "so loved" by God that he gave his son (John 3:16); man can do not less and must express that love in service to others. To fail in the first is to break the greatest of the commandments and therefore to be guilty of all, Rom. Human and Deity.

II. The question of Jesus, vv. 35-37. Our Lord's question in return was a Messianic one and he grounds his argument on the 110th Psalm, a Messianic one. Jesus is inferior to David as his son according to the flesh but superior to him as lord of the kingdom of which David himself is a subject and not the sovereign. Christ is both human and deity; his kingdom is spiritual and earthly sovereigns are honored if they are his III. The teaching of Jesus, vv. 38-40. The word "doctrine" in verse 38 translated "teaching" in the revision. These words of warning are full of solemn significance. The scribes, and they have their imitators sought the places of ment, the seats of honor in the synagogue and the chief places at the feasts. The motive that governed them was a selfish one. They devoured widows' houses, and sought to cover their covetousness and dishonesty by long prayers and a pretense of piety. This brought upon them the greater condemnation," Matt. 24:51. Law and love is here again in contrast. Law must become life.

IV. The view of Jesus, vv. 41-44. Jesus had one look of love and compassion for his friends and the needy and another that was exceedingly terrible for his enemies. Thus it was as a master teacher that he saw right at hand an illustration for his lesson, an application of the truth in the case of the widow who gave out of her penury and because of her love for God, supporting these carping, selfish She had two mites (about fourth-fifths of a cent) and might have withheld one except that the rabbis forbade the offering of a single one. Her love, however, went beyond the "tenth" and she gave "all," therefore in proportion to their means she "cast more than they all," see II Cor. 8:12. Offerings are needed still for the Lord's work. Jesus is "over against the treasure" and "sees" who it is that "casts in" how much they cast and the motive behind the gift. The master's standard of a commendable offering is not according to our superfluity, but our deficiency, not what will be missed but what of sacrifice and in proportion thereto. Not to please man, but God. Read II Cor. in every room in her house, cast into the treasury remains for all time the true standard of measure-

The love of God unifies a man. We love because he first loved us, and in proportion as we truly apprehend his love, all that we have of heart, life, strength and mind, yea, our whole nature will unite in love. It is this which unifies society. To love him that begets is to love him that is begotten. To love God is to love man and to keep all of the divine commands that concern our relations to

A MAN OF FAITH

By HAROLD CARTER.

When Billy Durham was at school he was the butt of his companions, because he believed everything that he was told. As he grew older, however, instead of jeering at him the fellows used to go to him with their confidences. He had that captivating day and Friday with his parents near frankness and belief in human nature that, when genuine, proved irresistible. It was just the same when Billy was discharged from the insurance office. Mr. Somers, the manager, had been ordered to lay off some of the employes. He thought Billy was not cut out for the insurance business. "You'd better Troy, are the guests of relatives here. lay off for a while and look round to see if you don't find something more

He never expected to see Billy again, but, five weeks later, Billy was found at times is very annoying. It only takes at his desk one morning. "I didn't see Eilza Pence. anything I like better, so I came back," moted to be assistant manager by old ker and wife, Thursday. Rayden, who had taken a fancy to the young man.

> Old Rayden, being a millionaire, was home. However, Billy had been to the Roush, Sunday. Madison avenue mansion once or twice with important papers. He had seen Elsie Rayden there and had at once fallen in love with her. With his simplicity of mind, it did not occur to him that there would be any difficulty make her love him.

That summer he brooded over his John Roush and wife, Saturday. work, hoping against hope that the occasion would arise for him to go to Mr. Rayden's house again. But he was not summoned, and presently he discovered through the papers that Elsie Rayden was spending July at Atlan visited relatives here Friday. tic City.

She was tired of society life, was in love with Mr. Gerald Lomax, Liberty. who had been reported in the newspapers several times as paying her attention.

The result of that conversation was that Billy was invited to call at the She wanted to discover whether Ger family, Friday. trying to make him jealous. She timed Billy's second visit so that Billy was the first to leave and some thing which might have been called a "scene" in less exalted circles happened afterward. The next time Billy called Miss Elsie was more encouraging than ever. That was the beginning of a week of ecstacy for the young walks, they swam and drove, they patronized theaters and all the amusements. And presently the inevitable society item found its way into the Bridges, spent Thursday night with New York papers.

"Rumor has it that Mr. Willia Ellis Wilkin and wife visited Durham and Miss Elsie Rayden will Florence Feike in Hillsboro Wednesshortly announce their engagement." Billy read the item and turned white with indignation. He went straight to Miss Elsie's hotel and slapped the spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. newspaper down on the table before Chas. As Mr. Rayden had no expectation of seeing him again, he had left no instructions with the butler concerning him. So Billy, walking in, found himself in the midst of an animated family scene.

"I beg your pardon," said Billy to Mr. Rayden. "It's about that letter, you know. Why don't you want me? Isn't there some misunderstanding somewhere?"

"Yes, there has been a misunderstanding," growled Mr. Rayden, who, being a self-made man, had not much tact. "I misunderstood your sense of honor when you went to Atlantic City and got my daughter talked about."

Elsie, won't you think it over?" stammered Billy.
